County launches new communication tool bringing information and resources to residents' fingertips

STUART, Fla (February 16, 2021) – Today Martin County announced the release of an app, Connect Martin, designed to increase access to information and resources. The app is available for free download in both the Google Play and Apple App Store.

Martin County adds the app to an already robust set of communication tools designed with a variety of audiences in mind – a mobile responsive website, social media – Facebook, Twitter and Instagram, public meetings and a weekly e-newsletter. “There are many ways for residents to interact with the county and find information quickly,” said Commission Chair Stacey Hetherington. “You can find county-specific COVID-19 information, pay your utility bill, find a park, receive emergency push alerts and so much more,” she continued.

Connect Martin is easy to use and connects residents with information on the go! The app is backed by research and is completely customizable. The user-friendly launch screen offers the most searched for and utilized information, and county staff can adjust layout and information based on resident interest and needs. There’s even a live Twitter feed to keep residents connected with topics of local, state and national interest.

Residents are encouraged to visit www.martin.fl.us, Martin County’s online resource for services, news and information, and connect with us on social media. Follow us on Twitter, Facebook and Instagram and subscribe to our YouTube Channel.
